Our Statement of Commitment to Child Safety

Gladstone Region Aboriginal and Islander Community Controlled Health Service is firmly committed to the safety, wellbeing, and empowerment of all children.

We recognise the rights of children to feel safe, respected, and protected from harm, and we place these rights at the centre of our work.

We are dedicated to creating culturally safe, inclusive, and welcoming environments where every child, including children with disabilities, can thrive. Our organisation upholds a zero-tolerance approach to child abuse in any form and is committed to preventing harm through strong policies, clear procedures, and sustained vigilance.

We actively promote the participation and voice of children in our programs and services, and we support our staff, volunteers, and community partners to understand their responsibilities in safeguarding children. When concerns or incidents arise, we respond promptly, respectfully, and in accordance with our legal and ethical obligations.

Through continuous improvement, ongoing training, and collaboration with families and communities, we strive to uphold the highest standards of child safety and ensure that every child in our care feels valued, protected, and heard.
